

DESTROY YOUR ENVIRONMENT, DESTROY YOURSELF

18th November 2014

Start

The Endangered Wildlife Trust (EWT) is launching a national multi-phased integrated TV, radio, outdoor, and digital campaign entitled "destroy your environment, destroy yourself". The campaign will be launched on television on the 19th of November on BET international, channel 135 on DSTV at 11AM and will run until 31 December 2014. The campaign has been created by Lowe and Partners with support from the National Lottery Distribution Trust Fund.

The campaign is aimed at educating the public about the risks associated with destroying our environment and fostering a love for our natural world that is so integrated with the survival of human beings. The campaign exposes the hard truth: Destroying our environment will lead to the ultimate destruction of ourselves.

Yolan Friedmann, EWT CEO, said: "We can no longer ignore the fact that our environment underpins all human needs, and is integral to ensuring a sustainable and healthy future for all. The modernisation of society has largely meant increasing human wildlife conflict, escalating consumptive demand and the encroachment of habitats due to rampant infrastructural development. For many people it has meant an entrenched disconnect from our natural world and a lack of appreciation for the role that nature plays in human lives. We need to re-establish in people, an understanding of the various elements on our planet as one interdependent system."

Bruce Anderson, Executive Creative Director of Lowe and Partners Joburg said "Lowe Joburg together with sister company Initiative Media developed a campaign for the EWT that reminds us how connected we are to the environment. The EWT's role in actively conserving our natural heritage needs to be reinforced in the viewer's mind. The aim was to demonstrate how our actions or lack of action is directly linked to nature's well being."

As a 40 year old, leading biodiversity conservation organisation, the EWT is dedicated to conserving threatened species and ecosystems in Africa to the benefit of all. Successful conservation means protecting the habitats that support wild species – and human beings – and in this way, entire ecosystems, communities and socio-economic structures reap the benefits.
